

Incorporation of a Japanese Company (Brief Description)

To engage in commercial business activities in Japan, the practical option is to establish a "Branch Office" or a "Japanese Company" (Kabushiki-Kaisha [KK Co.] or Godo-Kaisha [GK Co.] as a legal entity.

Branch Office

There are no fundamental differences between a "Branch Office" and a "Japanese Company" regarding the range of business activities allowed. The tax rate is the same for a Branch office and a Japanese company. For registration, there is no requirement to establish a statutory officers/management body, and it only needs a local physical address (not a PO Box) and a Representative in Japan (must be a "Resident of Japan"). A Branch Office can register a maximum of 2 (two) "Representatives in Japan," but one must be a "Resident of Japan."

Japanese Company

To establish a Japanese company, there are the following options:

- a) Kabushiki-Kaisha [KK Co.] (Joint-stock corporation) {Kabushiki Joto Seigen Kaisha – (If No Committee is Established)}
- b) Godo-Kaisha [GK Co.] Limited Liability Company (LLC) or similar entity stipulated by Japan's Companies Act.

There are formats such as Gomei-Kaisha (unlimited partnerships) and Goshi-Kaisha (limited partnerships) under the Companies Act. Still, they are rarely chosen in practice because equity participant's burden is unlimited rather than a limited liability.

For incorporation of either a KK Co. or GK Co., the minimum standard criteria are as follows:

- A "Japan physical address" for the co.'s "Registered Office Address" (physical address and not a PO Box)

Since Mar'2015, the Japanese government has revised the Companies Act to allow foreign companies and individuals to incorporate a Japanese Company without a "Resident of Japan." Therefore, both shareholders/Investors and directors/executives could be non-resident in Japan.

Registration of a Japanese Company by the non-resident in Japan: Any of the following options are available for completing the "paid-up capital" procedure:

- i. The Shareholder/Investor opening a Bank account with a Japanese bank in the home country;
- ii. The Shareholder/Investor temporarily uses a bank account of a "Resident of Japan." In this case, the following steps need to be followed:
 - A Japan Resident has temporarily given a token one(1) share at the time of incorporation. The Japan resident's bank account is used for paid-up capital/equity procedures for registration purposes.
 - Once the registration is completed, the Japan resident's token share/equity can be transferred back to the non-resident foreign Shareholder/Investor through an internal company document duly endorsed by both parties.
 - However, in the "Notification to Bank of Japan," the share/equity participation at the incorporation/registration time shall be reflected and cannot be amended post-registration.

The non-resident foreign Shareholder/Investors 100% investment shall reflect on the company tax-return document once the first company tax return is filed to the tax authorities.

Establishing a Japanese Company/Subsidiary Co in Japan

A foreign company willing to establish a subsidiary company in Japan have the following options:

- I. Kabushiki-Kaisha [KK Co.] (Joint-stock corporation) {Kabushiki Joto Seigen Kaisha – (If No Committee is Established)}
- II. Godo-Kaisha [GK Co.] Limited Liability Company (LLC) or similar entity stipulated by Japan's Companies Act.

There are formats such as Gomei-Kaisha (unlimited partnerships) and Goshi-Kaisha (limited partnerships) under the Companies Act. Still, they are rarely chosen in practice because equity participant's burden is unlimited rather than a limited liability.

A subsidiary company is a separate legal entity from the parent company; therefore, the foreign company will bear the liability of an equity participant stipulated by law for all debts and credits generated by the subsidiary company's activities.

For incorporation of either a KK Co. or GK Co., the minimum standard criteria are as follows:

- A "Japan physical address" for the co.'s "Registered Office Address" (physical address and not a PO Box)

Since Mar'2015, the Japanese government has revised the Companies Act to allow foreign companies and individuals to incorporate a Japanese Company without a "Resident of Japan." Therefore, both shareholders/Investors and directors/executives could be non-resident in Japan.
